

8. Community Resources

Notes

- * Examples of community resources may include: child care resource and referral agency, city recreation department, public library, housing authority, parent resource center, crisis hotline, Easter Seals, public health clinic, WIC, YMCA, YWCA, recycling center, consumer credit counseling, Social Security, Child Find, or developmental screening services available through local early intervention organizations and public schools.
-  The requirement that all children are screened is met if all children are given the opportunity to receive a developmental screening even if some parents refuse to give consent or refuse to complete the developmental screening form provided.
-  Childrearing issues may include: guidance and discipline, fussy eaters, children with challenging behaviors, toileting, school readiness, or sibling rivalry.

Questions

Does the provider share information with parents about community resources? How does the provider facilitate the developmental screening for young children?

What information is shared with parents about child development and childrearing issues? How does this occur?

What supports are available to help parents reduce their child care costs? How is this information shared with parents?